

Dear parents: last Friday seems an eternity away now but saw a wonderful evening of family fun and fireworks. Probably our best ever display as we condensed the timings and a lovely November 5th atmosphere. Thank you for coming in such a huge numbers and for all the kind comments during the evening as well very much appreciated.

This week has been more reflective with our Remembrance Day service yesterday and the unveiling of a plaque in our new Derek Vitali Reading and Arts Centre. His wife and family came and celebrated his life with us. the 'Enjoy yourself' at the bottom comes from his favourite song Prince Buster ska song mid 1960s. It's on YouTube. A lovely Year 1 Autumnal / Hibernation assembly made for a busy but memorable day yesterday. Read on special photos Newsletter as well this week.

Wreath laying and our 2 minute silence.

and finally have you noticed how late Autumn is this year ? really came home when I saw Year 1s assembly with all their lovely colours and looking out and seeing all the leaves still on the trees in mid-November. Beautiful colours too climate change?... anyway as Cop 26 finishes I have an answer that will massively help by 2025 it is widely predicted that with the ever increasing power of Metaverse (old Facebook), Microsoft and co the number 1 major contributor of global warming will be the massive anonymous data centres required to power all these platforms, plus the rare earth metals and mining needed for screens, batteries and conductors etc ... so the answer put down your phones, stop staring at screens all day long and cancel social media. I'm sure that will go down well among activists and Generation Z hmmm ! international football, rugby, T20 cricket and Brazil Grand prix weekend ...mostly dry weekend so if the tennis courts are swept clear of leaves could be a good one whatever you do try and get out into the parks of London and enjoy the colours.
