

Half-term activities

Below are some activities for the children to work on over the half term week. I have also set some Reading and Maths activities on Purple Mash. As always, please do send it pictures of any activities the children complete! I hope you have a nice week and enjoy the lovely weather.

R.E

The children should look through the Ascension PowerPoint and work through the activities based on the Ascension and Pentecost.

Pentecost is an important time in our religious calendar and this year will be celebrated on Sunday the 31st May.

Art

We are running a competition inspired by David Hockney, closing date 5th June. Please look at the pdf document for more information!

Science

Over the last few weeks, I have set some work on plants and the life cycles of animals. I would like the children to focus on one of the following important scientists; Jane Goodall (some may have done Jane already) or David Attenborough. Both of these inspiring people have done so much good for our planet and the animals that live on it.

I would like the children to complete a research project on one of these scientists.

Ideas of what to include (but you may wish to add more!):

- Their early life
- Where they found their inspiration
- Achievements in the world of Science
- How they inspire others

Please remember to include subheadings. You can draw pictures to accompany your writing!
