

Dear parents: yes it's that wonderful time of year again when post-pandemic we can celebrate again and enjoy one of the truly great nights of the year. So happy Diwali to everyone.oh and tomorrow as a good Catholic school we celebrate Guy Fawkes and Fireworks Night once again after a short break. It is our busiest night of the year and this year it will all be held outdoors as a precaution so wrap up warm. Forecast is good and almost certainly dry at around 8 -10%..

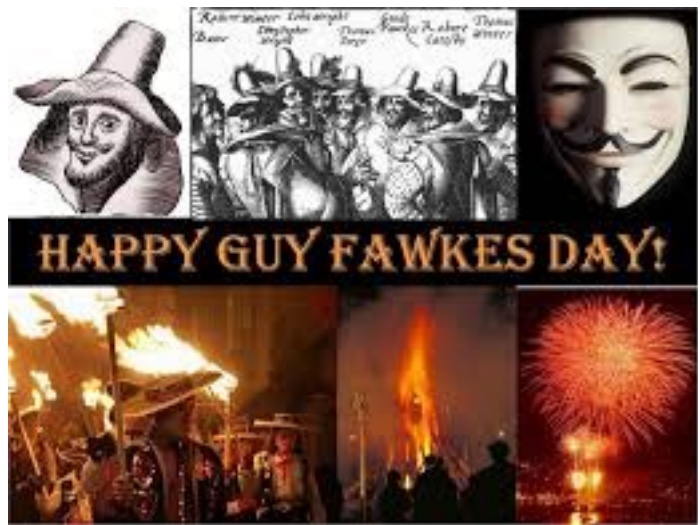

Entrance is by ticket only and must be purchased in advance.

This year we will have all food and drinks outside as we don't want any super spreading events indoors. So it's good old fresh air. Soft drinks and sweets and hot foods will be on sale and we will also be launching our amazing brand new Pizza oven. I tried it out last night after the governors meeting and WOW !!! is it good. Who doesn't like a bit of pizza on a cold night? ... When the pizzas are gone they are gone so same with all the food ...we have also received our licence so cold beers and drinks will be on sale as well this year. Raffle as well.... Gates open at 7.00pm and display will be around 8pm and will be spectacular with all eco-friendly fireworks specially purchased.

Hope we have a great, safe and fun filled evening.TICKET ONLY !!!

Plus thanks for all your kind words and lovely emails received before during and after half-term. Much appreciated. Let's have a bit of a fireworks night party after all it is NOVEMBER 5th. Remember Remember the 5th of November

Happy Diwali: One of the most sacred days of the year for Hindus, Jains and of course Sikhs. Tonight starts five days of celebration that was so muted last year. Anybody who knows Sikhs in particular (I've been all over the Punjab including the holy city of Amritsar) know they love a bit of a party with food, music, dancing and drinking.... above all for all Vedic faiths it is a time for families to come together as it is a Festival of Light. So Happy Diwali.

and finally pizza oven can now be used for all future events such as Christmas and Summer Fairs, and parties or whatever anyone wishes to organise in the future. An inspection I did recently paid for it so it's amazing more tomorrow so hurry tickets going like hot Organic sustainable pepperoni pizzas. wrap up warm and bring your smiles to the night it will be crowded so bring patience and understanding as well Guy Fawkes would have wanted that !!!
