Lanyards ... Green means Go. Yellow means checked and OK to Go. Red means OK to Go but with a member of staff. No Lanyard. Why are you in the building ?

Very easy between 8.45am and 3.45pm everyone in the building, apart from the main Reception entrance must have and wear a visible lanyard. Green means a member of staff with a current enhanced DBS criminal records check and much more Yellow means a signed in visitor that we know who has a DBS check and photo ID. Red means you have signed in been given a lanyard and are with a member of staff at all times. No Lanyard !!! ..why on earth are you in the building at this time ? Not signed in and therefore must leave immediately via the main office and receive a first piece of advice. Second time a 1st warning note will be issued-. A 2nd and finally 3rd time will result in a ban from school premises and you will have to wait at the gate. You must report to the main Reception area first from now on. This is to keep all your children safe and is easy to comply with. Starts after Easter.

Pic of the week..

R.I.P Stephen Hawkings

did not understand a Brief History of Time but an inspiring man to us all and a life very well led. Some lovely quotes opposite and with Homer and the Donut shaped theory of the Universe.

and finally .. no room to talk about Russia or Carragher, Corbyn or Cheltenham so my tips for the Gold Cup are Might Bite and Killutagh Vic will all be over by the time you read this and what do I know ... know I can't wait for Twickenham tomorrow and c'mon Ireland. Only time I don't cheer for England is in the rugby. Wrap up warm and Slainte .. !!!
